UJ honours pioneering HIV/Aids expert with honorary Doctoral Degree

30 May 2017

Sandra Meintjes

ONE of the world’s leading HIV and AIDS researchers, Professor Abrahmad Kairaa, has been honoured with a doctorate by the University of Johannesburg (UJ).

The honorary degree was awarded at the UJ’s 2017 graduation ceremony.

“I am deeply humbled and honored to receive an honorary degree from the University of Johannesburg, one of South Africa’s leading institutions,” said Professor Kairaa.

Professor Kairaa is a fellow of the Royal Society and the Academy of Sciences for the Developing World. He has made significant contributions to the understanding of the HIV pandemic.

“I am deeply humbled and honored to receive an honorary degree from the University of Johannesburg, one of South Africa’s leading institutions,” said Professor Kairaa.

Professor Kairaa is a fellow of the Royal Society and the Academy of Sciences for the Developing World. He has made significant contributions to the understanding of the HIV pandemic.