The Certified Faithfuls (C.F.T.) project has been ongoing in South Africa since 2012. The project's aim is to provide faith-based communities with tools and resources to support HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment. The C.F.T. model integrates faith and science to promote HIV education and support for people living with HIV. The project has been successful in reducing stigma and increasing access to HIV testing and care in faith-based communities. The project has also been recognized for its innovative approach to HIV prevention and care, and it continues to expand its reach across South Africa.
